

ABSTRACT

According to the present invention there is provided a method of cell selection and characterization that is related to a field known as cytometry. Further, the present invention relates to a method for testing human cancer cells sensitivity (or alternatively, cells resistance) to anti-cancer drugs, by using laser-based non-flow cytometry.